Preface

The absence of a good design tool for building a set a mnemonic images with the Major system has always been a problem. After building a basic one, I found that my images were able to be more visual and I could create better stories that followed a theme with more options and used a better visual sentence structure. This extended version should help you prepare what needs to be memorized without the drudgery of compiling your own list.

If you have any questions, updates, or comments, you can contact me on the Art of Memory forum (https://forum.artofmemory.com/) at @thinkaboutthebible. You'll find updates as I make them on my github account at https://github.com/dougs-repos/Memory.

The Major system

The Major system is useful for an all-purpose way to convert numbers to digits from one digit to three digits at a time. Larger numbers become combinations of smaller groups. The phonetic sounds are mapped to each digit. About the only sound that you might want to skip is the Th sound as it is not really a traditional mapping, but then you block out many options. Also, I have seen Th as a part of 8 but I prefer it in 1 as in some of the original variations.

According to Seth Long, author of Excavating the Memory Palace, a French mathematician and astronomer named Pierre Hérigone developed the technique in his Cursus Mathematicus in the 1630s. (Long, 2020, p. 130) However, it must be noted the Hérigone's system is similar to the Hindi Katapayadi system, which dates to the seventh-century in India and was utilized by South Asian astronomers and mathematicians to encode digits. It however has 33 consonants to encode making it a distant cousin if any and no real relationship of sounds exist between the two.

Johann Just Winkelmann, under the pseudonym Stanislaus Mink von Wennsshein, used it and is often credited with the development of the phonemic system. A few variations were tried, for instance by combining visual shapes, until in about 1820 Aimé Paris decided on the system that is in common use. In the 1840's a London memory expert from Poland, Major Beniowski, lent his name to the system. Then, in the mid-70's, a best-selling mnemonic book, The Memory Book, by the magician Harry Lorayne, popularized it as something more than a way to do card tricks.

In the Major system, the number 2763 would be converted into neck and chime as possible keywords as they follow the table's conversion of consonant sounds to digits. Vowels (A, E, I, O, U), diphthongs, aspirated sounds (H, W, Y) are added at your discretion to the middle, beginning, and end, allowing for a wide range of like-sounding words.

The following are the English language conversions. Other languages will have additional letters and sounds. The aspirated consonants of H, W, and Y (highway, if you need a mnemonic), are not included and can be used for other purposes.

Major system conversion

Digit	Sounds	Reasoning
0	S, Z	first letter of the number zero
1	D, T, Th	one vertical stroke in the letter T
2	N	two vertical strokes in the letter N
3	M	three vertical strokes in the letter M
4	R	last letter in the number four
5	L	hold your left hand up with fingers together, Roman numeral for 50

6	Ch, J, Sh	upside-down lower-case g (soft g as in George), almost upper-case G
7	G, K, Q	two sevens make up the upper-case letter K
8	F, V	script written lower-case F
9	B, P	mirror-image upper-case P

Major system learning

Go through the single digits and commit at least one consonant for each digit to memory. Write the system table down on paper. Then without looking, recall the mapping for each. Repeat the attempt to recall the encoding several times. Correct yourself with your table. Then recall without looking while you are going to sleep, the next morning, and a few times more in the day until you have it down, knowing all the consonants without making a mistake and not taking too long.

Then see if you can recall the digit sounds backwards. During the following days, encode numbers you see it in your head. Phone numbers, addresses, PINs, etc. The next step will be to learn some number keywords, or visual words that are developed from the consonant sounds.

A reverse acronym by sound with all the 1-digit sounds in order is:

The new mayor will shake off a boss.

The SEA-IT system

Because the mind uses language to communicate, we tend to think in the patterns of language. The pattern of a strong visual image is that of a sentence where a subject performs an action on another thing. They are probably in a place that can be visualized and other details surrounding the scene are helpful to describe. So, we have the elements of a strong image and an order of subject-action-item at a minimum. It can also be called a visual sentence since it is directly related to the construction of a sentence in English.

If the sentence makes sense, we can say that it has a narrative logic to it and because it follows an expected pattern, it is easier to recall. The subject performs an action it is capable of, and it does it on an object that seems likely the target of the action. It is also very likely that the subject has a preferred place where the action takes place. Paul Bunyan has an affinity for sawing trees in a forest.

Memory athlete and neuroscientist Boris Konrad was surprised to find out that experimental evidence using the VVIQ to gauge people's ability to visualize was not correlated to how good you were at memorizing. The hesitancy that this produced for people who believed it made people a worse memorizer. What did make people better at mnemonics was the ability to create narrative logic or in more simpler terms, how to tell a story. It wasn't the pretty pictures they created in their brain; it was the connections they made there. It wasn't the IQ of the person either noting that anyone could benefit.

The acronym SEA-IT best fits a group of main five data types, but other systems cover many of the types as well. Another acronym you might see is PAIL for Person, Action, Item and Location. PAO, which is more of a competition type and therefore a simpler grouping, stands for Person, Action, and Object, and is the most popular subject peg system.

There are only three unique primary visual word types, really, as the action is a tightly coupled movement of the subject. Elaborations are about adding relevant detail to the three data types. The item is a type of subject that is acted on. And the terrain provides a theme or the scenery for all the action to take place in. Altogether, the types are:

- The subject – The one that initiates action against the item and can be real, imaginary, a person, an animal, an anthropomorphic creature created from an inanimate item, or anything else that can perform an action. The subject dictates the theme of the sentence to influence all the other parts.

- The elaborations – Any of the other four sentence parts can be made more memorable by adding adjectives or as in the case of the action, an adverb. Common enhancements are clothing, scale, weather, and superpowers. Multiple elaborations mean more keywords and more storage.
- The action – This is the verb that works best with a direct object. A direct object is the item of the action. An action is very closely associated with the subject because it is constrained by the subject's ability, familiarity of the subject performing that action, or difficulty in making sense out of the subject perform the action.
- The item – The item can be like the subject but is on the receiving end of the action and should be associated in some way with the subject. But it must receive action and not just be an elaboration participating in the sentence. Use the test of action and reaction or cause and effect to see if the item is reacting or being changed.
- The terrain – The background, scenery, or geographic place that the action is taking place in. This is a distinct area that can contain multiple items but is most likely associated with the subject. People find unique places or objects here described by features which are the basis for the method of loci.

To chart it out I use a small table to see what goes where and fill in the blanks to understand the visual images that are being created.

Visual sentence grid

Subject	Action	Item	Terrain
Subject's elaboration	Action's elaboration	Item's elaboration	Terrain's elaboration

Psychology would call the SEA-IT organization of images with its elaborations of each data type distinctive processing, which will facilitate artificial memory beyond the operation of either alone.

The Major System Toolkit has a unique feature not found in any other past compilations of keywords in that the 1- and 2-digit entries are divided into these five categories of usage. Also, the subjects have been further sub-divided into several more categories explained in the organization section allowing the more advanced student select their preferred method of using different styles of rule-based peg systems based on subjects such as the PAO system. The beginning student will find the default keywords more useful to start with.

If you are interested in more information on this way of analyzing the mnemonic process, I plan on releasing my The Memory Manual and the related Memory Manual Exercises in some form in the future.

Organization

Words with one Major system sound appear only in the one-digit section. Words with two Major system sounds appear only in the two-digit section. And words with three or more Major system sounds will be found in the three-digit section.

Subjects are types of people, animals, insects, or anything that is living but does not have a individual name. Those that do have a real specific name are split into three categories:

- First only (❶) - names commonly used in the Western world as a first name.
- One name (❷) - names which are considered proper names and have no real last name include mononyms, compound aliases, music group names, corporations, pet names, and uncommon names that seem to follow name conventions. SpongeBob SquarePants and Malcolm X are here. These names only have one conversion.
- First and Last names- real people who have first and last names or those fictional characters representing real people with common types of names. Marge Simpson and O. J. Simpson would be here, but Bugs Bunny would not. Names have three conversions here: first name sort (❸), last name sort (❹), or first consonants of first and last name (❺) which are only found in the 2-digit section.

Verbs, such as making a noise like an exclamation, and nouns that result from the subject performing an action, not directed towards an object are generally considered more of an elaboration because the visualization would be better. (Hum is verb but is listed as an elaboration as is the words “ahem.”)

Terrains can be fluid between items and terrains but if the item is large enough to take in several visual elements, it was placed subjectively in the terrain category. Events are usually terrains also such as a wedding or a funeral. Outside features such as a mountain range or an oasis are better visualized as a terrain rather than an item as well as rooms that you walk around in.

For quick use, the complete BOLDED, UPPER-CASED items are my default words. UPPER-CASED subjects and terrains, found through 99, are also useful. Default keyword selection is based on the best possible visual and starting consonant image with a preference for an item (LEAF vs olive). Keywords with similar images are avoided as defaults.

A few rules are relaxed when few options are available.

Keyword selection

Words that have the most value to a mnemonic are those that present themselves with a vivid image. Others that are strong concepts and can be associated with items or turned into substitute words are also useful.

Words excluded from the sources are:

- extensions of other words such as a plural (see intro to 2- and 3- digit sections)
- words not in common use, archaic
- unusual place names (to me)
- very offensive words
- British or other regional slang excepting some common American slang
- dated terms
- derivative words without much added meaning (desert – deserter, desertion)
- duplicate meaning of words (cab driver, cab man, cabbie)
- phrases unless especially visual and unique

Subject selection

Subjects were selected out of a large pool of eligible famous names. Those that seemed to be the best types of candidates are those who

- are visual performing artists
- are cartoon/comic characters
- have had frequent TV appearances
- have distinct visual appearances
- have unique characteristics or historical importance

Subject selection is very subjective, and my list shows a bias towards American culture with most people who rose to fame between 1970 and 1980 which was my heavy television and film viewing period. Also, I tend to have vivid memories of music and include many musicians and composers.

Stats

15,130+ terms, 14,260 minutes (237 hours) editing.

700+ first names. 2,225+ proper names sorted in three different ways.

The keywords

Default keywords

1-digit default keywords

saw, tie, knee, ammo, arrow, law, shoe, key, ivy, pie

1-digit keywords story

The story for my 1-digit default keywords are based on the full SEA-IT elaboration of the item. Most importantly it involves the subject associated with that item that was chosen. This same subject will be the cue for the 2-digit keywords as well. This is how I learned the keywords and as they become more familiar the story is less important. But it is a great training aid. Change it up for whatever reason you want.

Paul Bunyan uses a saw to cut through the maple trees to get syrup for his maple sauce. One of the trees has 007 tied up to it, wearing his suit and tie. He has been left to die, but Paul frees him, so he goes to his favorite beach bar. Another escape at the bar causes 007 to hide in a tomb to get away and people bring the tomb to a church. In the front is a person on his knee praying. The praying guy finds Sylvester Stallone outside with ammo belts ready to fight a battle and tells him who is hiding in the tomb in the church. As Stallone moves in on 007 in the church, he is taken out by the Green Arrow with an explosive tipped arrow that damages the church.

The Green Arrow is brought before a court of law by the chaplain, with Judge Judy presiding, to pay for damages to the church. But Green Arrow blames Rambo. The next case in court is where Maxwell Smart is assigned to watch some unusual Mid-eastern men and call using his shoe phone if they look like they might cause trouble. The men just want to have a good time together and sit around and smoke and drink.

The men notice Alice in the corner, so she wants to get away and drinks a potion to get smaller and uses a tiny key to exit out of their sight through a tiny door in the back of the house. The door is covered with ivy because it's a part of the school that Barack Obama went to during his Ivy League days. Barack is spotted in the school after his lecture buying a pie from my grandmother to raise money for the school.

2-digit default keywords

00 – sauce, suit, sun, semi, sari, sail, sushi, sock, safe, soup

10 – toes, tattoo, tin, tomb, tire, tile, dish, taco, dive, tape

20 – nose, knot, onion, gnome, wiener, nail, nacho, nuke, knife, knob

30 – maze, mud, moon, muumuu, hammer, email, match, mug, movie, map

40 – rose, rat, rain, rum, aurora, roll, roach, rake, raffia, rope

50 – lasso, light, lawn, lime, lure, lily, leash, lock, leaf, lip

60 – cheese, sheet, chain, gem, chair, shell, hashish, jug, Jif peanut butter, ship

70 – kiss, coat, canoe, comb, okra, glue, couch, cake, coffee, cab

80 – face, foot, phone, foam, fire, waffle, fudge, fog, fife, phobia

90 – peace, bed, pen, bomb, beer, bell, peach, bike, beehive, pipe

2-digit keywords stories

As I was memorizing these numbers, I realized that I grouped them into sub-stories, mostly anchored by a subject in the 1-digit keywords, that included between two and four images each. The sub-stories, or scenes, can be visualized at one time making it easier and faster to move through for review or retrieval as you are learning. At some point, the images will just be associated with the numbers and you will drop the story if you review enough.

The dirty suit - Paul Bunyan saws through the maple tree for his maple sauce but spills it on his suit. He takes it off and dries it out in the sun on a hot asphalt road to dry fast.

Reusing the suit - A semi runs over it and flattens it out. An Indian woman picks it up to make a sari out of it and uses the rest of it as a sail on a boat.

Making food - She sails out with Paul and catches fish for sushi which he puts maple sauce on. The leftover fish parts she stores in a sock in a safe and then takes out later to make soup.

The attack at the bar - James Bond shows up sitting in a French bar at the beach eating that soup. Now that he's free and enjoying his martinis, he notices that he lost his shoes during the escape and his toes are sticking out of his socks. His toes have a tattoo needles implanted in them as weapons. But they do no good against the enemy that sneaks up and stabs him with a jagged tin can.

Bond escapes - Bond supposedly dies and is placed in a nearby museum tomb with tires that rolls down the French beach town street. The street turns to colorful tile near the beach and halts at the curb next to the sand where most of the contents of the tomb dump out containing large dishes of tacos (007 is still alive somewhere!).

Mayhem at the beach – Bond is holding on to the bottom of the tomb and the crash created an uproar. Not to turn down a free meal, hungry swimmers from the beach dive in and start eating. They tape up the tomb and take home the rest of the tacos.

A praying man with a cold – The swimmers don't want the tomb and take it to the local church with 007 on the bottom. The praying man on his knee at the front of the church has a bad cold and out of his nose comes mucus which he uses to tie knots around halves of onions someone told him would help cure his cold. It doesn't.

The church gnomes cook-out - So, he throws them out the window where the garden gnomes find them and toss them on the grill alongside the wieners there. When the onions and wieners are done, they put them on nails sticking out of the garden wall until they cool. They then chop them up, add them to tortilla chips to make nachos.

Customers order church gnome food – When a churchgoer wants a plate of nachos, the gnomes throw them in the microwave to nuke them. They slice off a portion of the nachos with a knife and add a knob of cheddar cheese on top for each church garden customer.

Rambo goes to war - Sylvester Stallone heals from his previous battle wounds by eating an order of church nachos and cheese, and while looking for the next battle encounters a maze, he knows has the enemy in it. He trudges through the mud under cover of night lit only by the moon to find the dangerous Muumuu gang members wearing long dresses.

Rambo captures the gang - He catches the gang members one by one and nails them to the wall with his hammer so they can't escape. He takes out his cell phone, takes a picture of each one, and emails them to his headquarters.

Headquarters celebrates his success – Headquarters matches the gang members' faces to mug shots in a database there. They then sends out a crew to make a movie of Stallone with each of the captured gang members and create a map of where they were found to document the success.

Green Arrow can't find any action - The Green Arrow, having taken out Stallone, frees 007, checks out the church surroundings for other culprits and heads towards the rose garden. He spots a rat or two which are easy targets for him, but the rain is making it hard for him to hold his bow steady.

Green Arrow kicks back at dusk - He hasn't found any food today, so he grabs his bottle of rum and heads for a lounge chair in the back of the church as night falls. The aurora comes out which he wants to watch while smokes a joint. He pulls out his papers and rolls a new one and pulls out his own Green Arrow roach clip.

Green Arrow cleans up his mess – While he's lounging, he notices how many joint papers he's left on the lawn. He rakes them up as a courtesy to the church, twists them together like raffia, and then takes several strands and makes a rope for his crime-solving escapades later.

Judge Judy decrees a sentence - Having destroyed part of the church, Green Arrow blames Rambo in a court of law where Judge Judy is presiding. She orders Rambo to build it back. He tries to escape being falsely accused, Green Arrow sees him, and uses his new rope as a lasso to capture him and bring him back to court. Judge Judy decides that he should have a bright light shine on him in the front lawn with a sign that says "I was bad."

Humiliation for Rambo - People throw limes at him for fun. He gains enough strength to break free and uses a lime to create a lure so he can catch a man-eating lily to get back at the Green Arrow. He thinks Judge Judy won't know it was him. He casts the lure out into the lake.

Rambo catches a monster - The lily takes the bait and Stallone throws a leash on it and locks it up with his discarded lasso on a tree. The lily monster shakes the tree violently making all the leaves fall off. Stallone calmly goes over and punches it in his lip to tell him to calm down. "Judge Judy won't figure this one out," he says to himself.

The guarded bed - The next case in the judge's docket is where Maxwell Smart is assigned to guard a secret room and the men in it in the Middle East. The bed has a yellow cheese sheet made from American processed cheese that slides off easily, so it has been chained to the bed.

The furniture - The bed itself is decorated with many gems embedded the wood, and an adjacent chair is decorated the same way next to it. The seat of the chair is made from a very large abalone shell in mother of pearl.

The illegal substances - Several bearded men on the floor near the bed and sitting in the chair are smoking hashish from a water pipe and drinking some kind of alcoholic beverage from a jug.

The men get the munchies - The men are getting very animated because they ran out of Jif peanut butter for their pita bread. One of them has go down to the dock to the ship where there is a store and buy some more.

Alice says good-bye - The Middle Eastern men get so plastered they think they see a little tiny girl on the end of the room. It's Alice in Wonderland who blows them a kiss while she grabs her yellow rubber coat in case of rain, packs some lunch, and exits the tiny door at the bottom of the wall using her tiny key.
The lake trip - She runs across the grass to a lake and gets into a canoe to enjoy the day. Just in case she sees anyone she knows, she smooths her dress and combs her hair.

Lunch on the lake – Alice then proceeds to have lunch. She's having cooked okra today. The okra is so gooey that it works well as a glue to patch the small leaks in her canoe which appear from front to back.

Dessert on the shore - She reaches the opposite of the lake and gets out on a dock at a rest area with a couch for her to sit on. There she has some delicious cake with coffee. The okra didn't work to patch the holes and she watches the canoe sink as she has her dessert. She calls a cab to get home.

A surprising driver - Barack Obama, now down on his luck after spending all his cash on his new home and losing it in a divorce is forced to drive a cab. His face is posted on the back of the front seat so Alice can see who it is. Barack's foot hits the accelerator pedal and takes off. He wants revenge.

The revenge plan – His cell phone rings with a friend who tells him a plan. He's going to build a large foam box container that is easy to transport. He'll seal the outside of the box by spraying it with a fire extinguisher and letting it dry. Then, he'll make sure the inside uses waffle foam so people can't hear anything on the outside.

Setting the trap - To attract his enemies, he'll put pieces of fudge leading up to the entrance and on the waffle pieces inside. When the enemy is in the container, he'll shut the door.

The torture – He'll then set off large cannisters of fog outside the box to hide him moving the foam box to a secret location where a fife player plays all day long which he knows is a phobia of his enemy.

A memorable moment for an old hippie - Barack managed to get a lecturing gig at one of his Ivy League schools and they hold a fund raiser by selling pies. He buys one from my grandmother. He flashes her the peace sign which makes that old hippy happy. She goes home to write about meeting him, climbs into bed and writes with her favorite glow-in-the-dark pen in her old diary kept since 1960.

Old habits - She still wears her "Ban the bomb" t-shirt with a peace sign in it from the 60s around the house. While she's making the next batch of pies, she pours herself a beer just like she's done for 50 years.

Sending the pies to the bake sale - The oven bell goes off. The peach pies are ready. A delivery man shows up to take the pies to the school fund raiser on a bike.

Getting honey for the pies - She stays home to replenish her honey supply from a beehive outside her window that uses a pipe to drain it inside without worrying about the bees.
